GRAPHIC DESIGN & PRINT PRODUCTION

Shoob Photography is a business that takes school pictures and independent sports leagues. They also provide print items for teachers, schools, and districts. I was in charge of printing all projects, except the school pictures. I also designed some of the projects along side the lead designer. I had to print posters, flyers, order forms, envelopes, tickets, notepads, large format photographs, banners, and more. I also had to cut print materials, grommet banners, run projects through a booklet maker or folding machine, and package projects.

TEACHER

I was hired to teach a class in graphic and print design. I have a preliminary CTE Credential in Manufacturing and Product Development, which covers those careers. Since the class did not exist yet they had me teach Computer Applications, Fundamentals of Engineering, and Introduction to Business. I had to create lesson plans, evaluate students, and I had to go school to take classes to become a teacher and get a permanent teaching credential.

SELF EMPLOYED

I was a freelance designer, creating websites, logos, and graphic design. In 2004 I started CVVT which was a business that took 360 virtual tours for real estate and commercial properties. I went to the property and took pictures, then created the 360 virtual tour to upload to the MLS and realtor.com or a separate website.
